April 2021

We are monitoring advice from our Northern California Nevada Conference of the UCC as well as Alameda County public health rules to determine when we can safely resume in-person worship services. The situation is changing rapidly as vaccinations increase. Meanwhile, be sure to get your shots! At first, we will probably plan on sitting apart and using air purifiers. We hope to be back to normal soon. Watch your email for updates.

Easter Sunday Video Service

LBC member Mary Chambers is working with Pastor Mary and Barbara Egbert to provide a special pre-recorded video service for Easter, similar to the excellent Christmas Eve video service. The link will be provided in the April 4 message that goes to everyone on our email list.

LBC celebrity

You can read the Livermore Independent's article about LBC member Doris Miller and her new book by searching for the headline, "Sunol Woman Publishes Post-WWII Memoir," or by using this link:

Financial Update

Please mail in your offerings and pledges so we can keep up with expenses and plan for this year's budget. We are substantially behind where we need to be to keep up with fixed expenses. Mail checks to Little Brown Church of Sunol, PO Box 124, Sunol CA, 94586.

Sacred People, Sacred Earth

The United Church of Christ has been actively involved in environmental issues for decades. UCC minister Jim Antal is one of today's leaders in the drive toward better climate policies and environmental justice. The church has an important role to play in addressing climate change, along with science, government, and other segments of society, because, Antal said, religion can offer the inspiration needed for many more people to become educated and active.

The United Church of Christ was involved on the international level during March by participating in a "Sacred People, Sacred Earth" event sponsored by Greenfaith, an international climate interfaith organization.

On the local level, churches are encouraged to work with local environmental coalitions, detail how members are taking action, and support advocacy in areas such as renewable energy and protection of indigenous communities.
